THE HEROES

The Director General and his Robot Changer fleet—mighty warriors that change into vehicles as they move from planet to planet protecting the galaxy from the evil Marshal Small.

THE ENEMY

Marshal Small and his fierce Zzerial warriors that also change into vehicles as they zoom across the galaxy in constant battle with the peace-loving Robot Changer fleet.

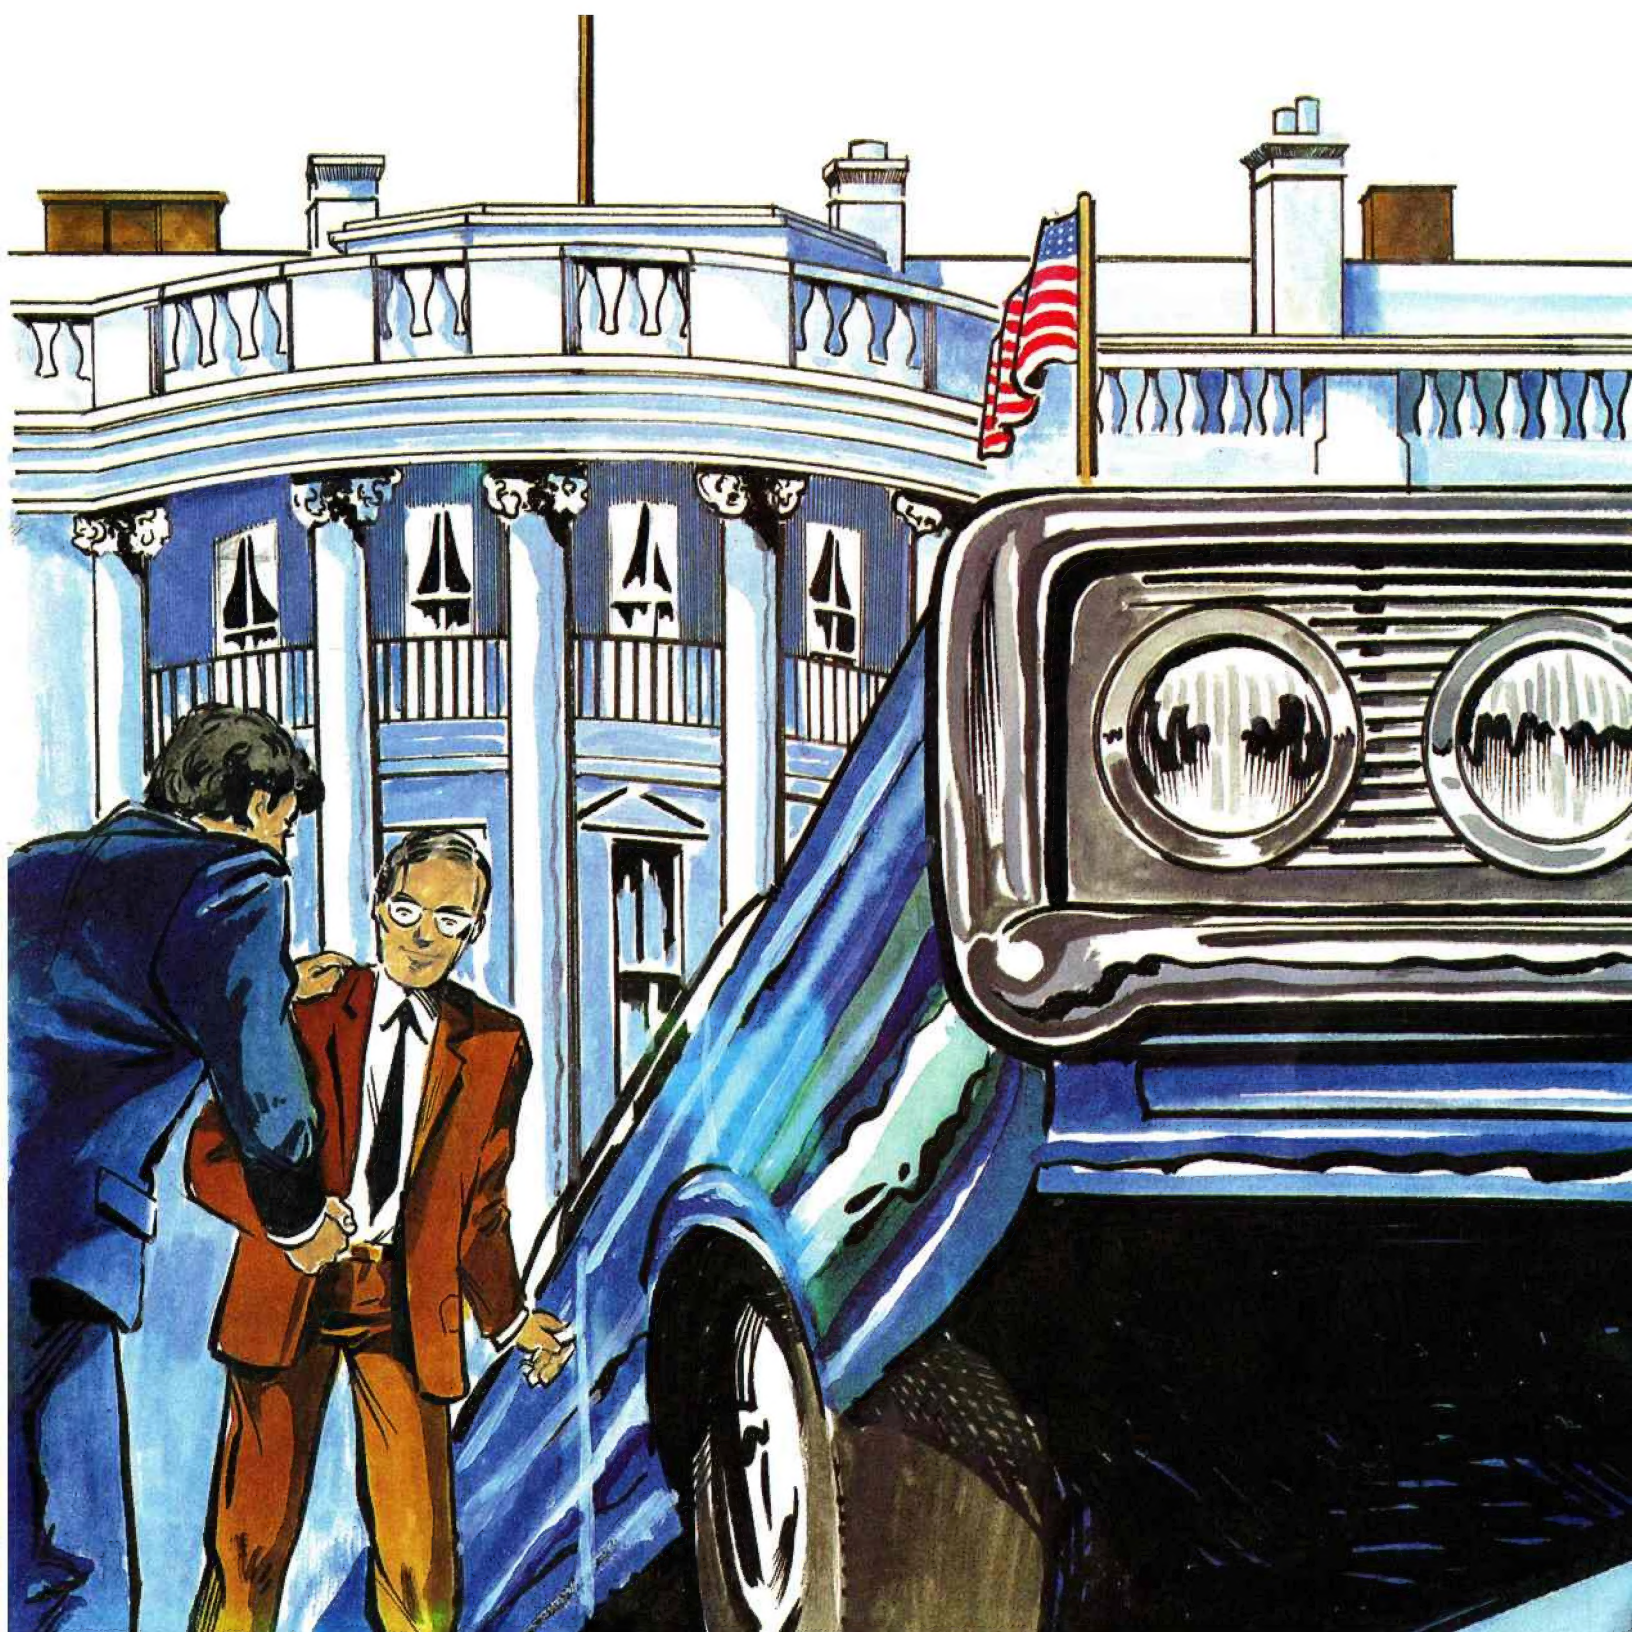

Marshal Small and his evil forces had become such a problem in the Galaxy of 9E—in spite of the efforts of the Robot Changer fleet—that the leaders of all the other planetary systems gathered to sign a pact to rid their territory of this menacing evil. Earth was the only planet whose signature had not yet been secured. With Earth's signature—an event Small was determined to prevent—Small's domination of the galaxy would be over forever.

On the planet Earth, the President of the United States dispatched his leading negotiator to the meeting.

In the meantime, Small sent two of his fiercest robots to Earth to divert the armed forces away from the meeting and leave it unprotected. The warriors took off at lightning speed, changing into a huge truck and a warhead tank as they landed. They rampaged around the outskirts of the city, creating devastation and chaos.

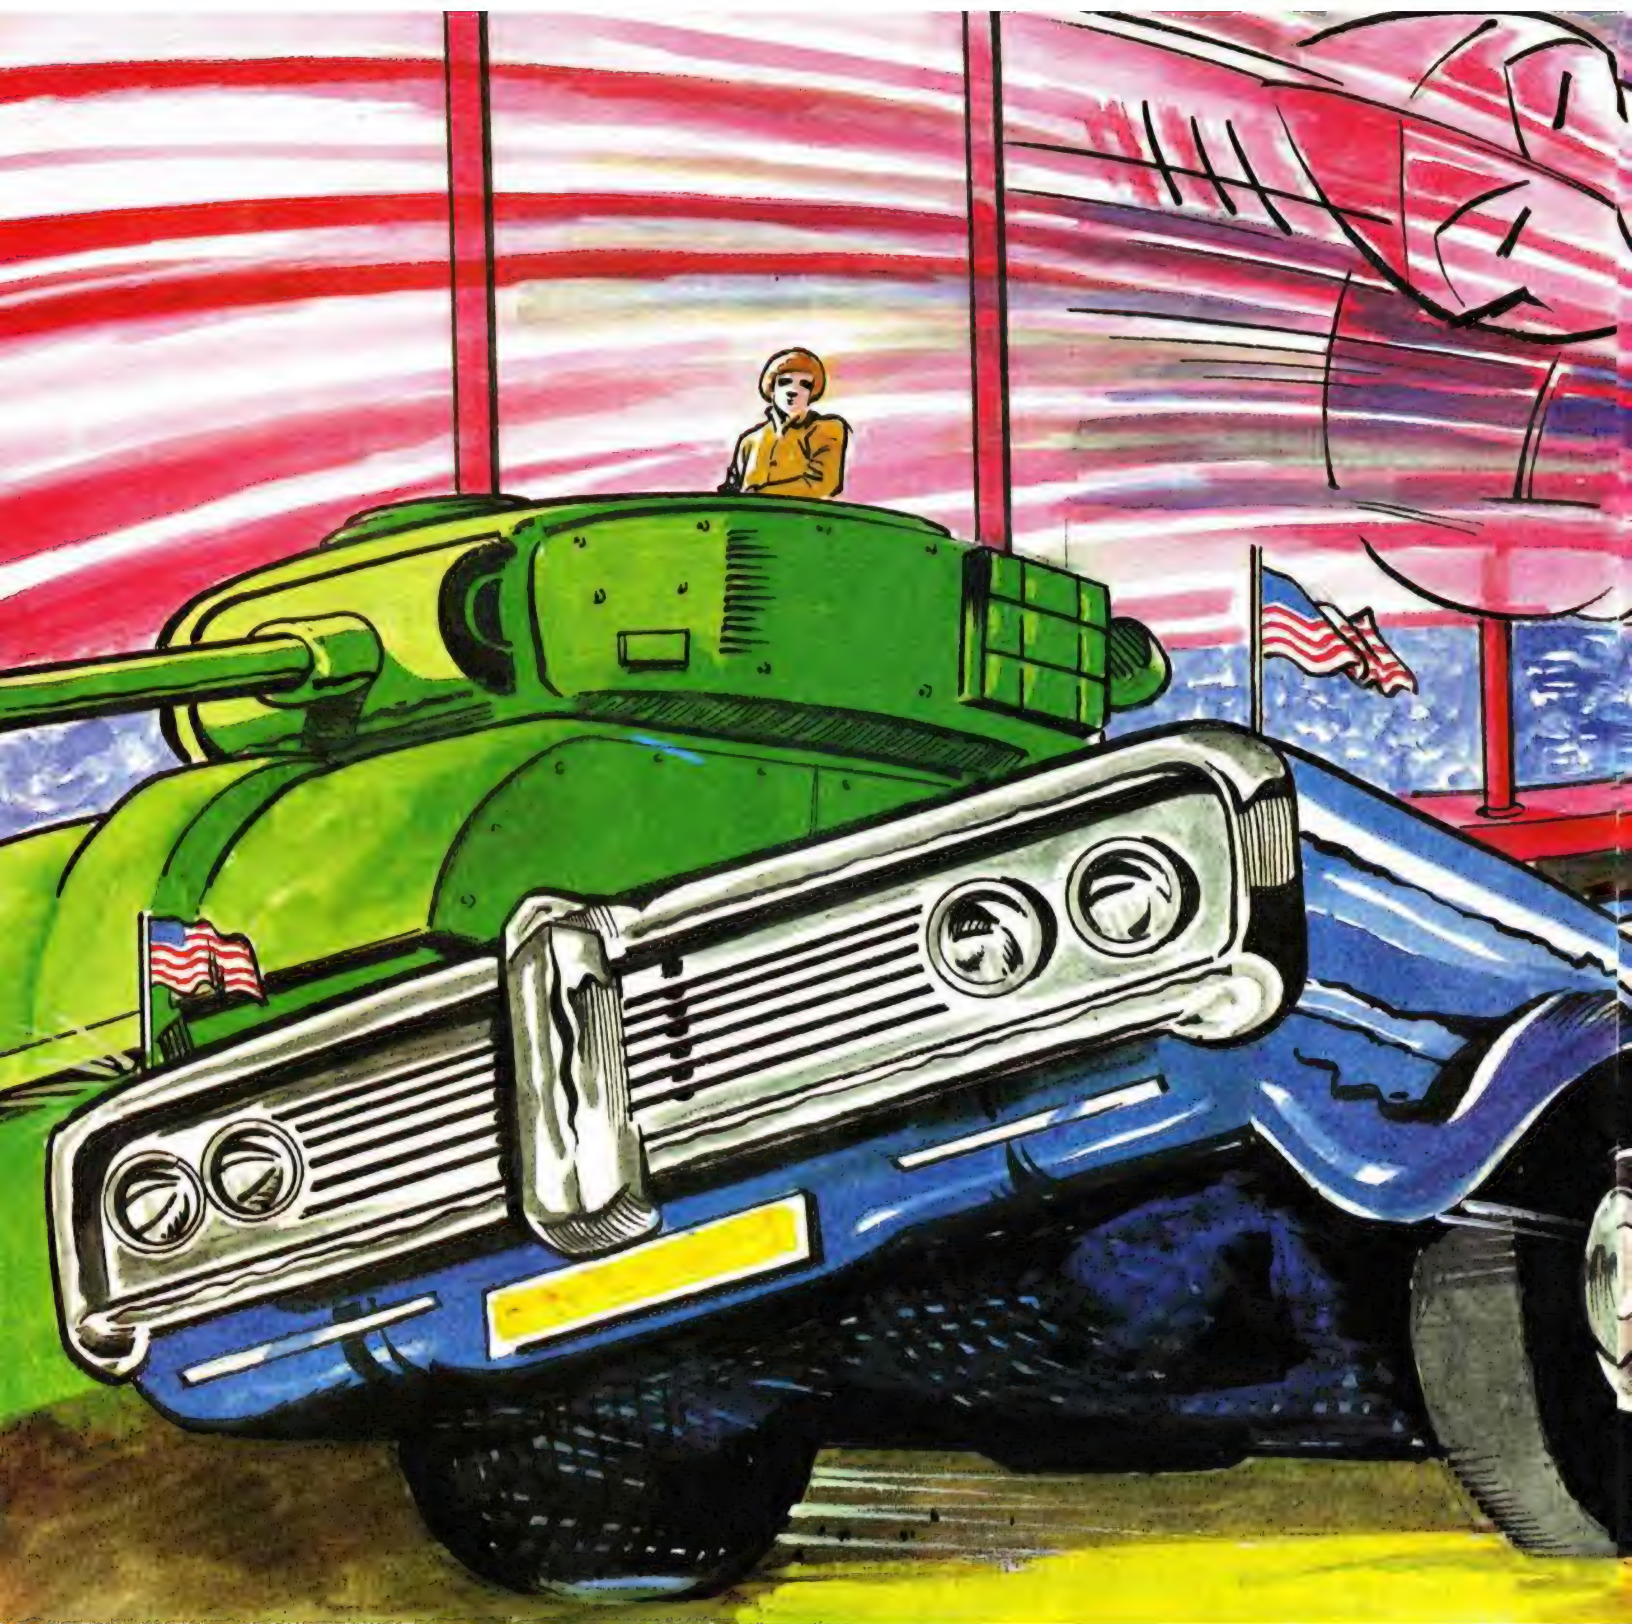

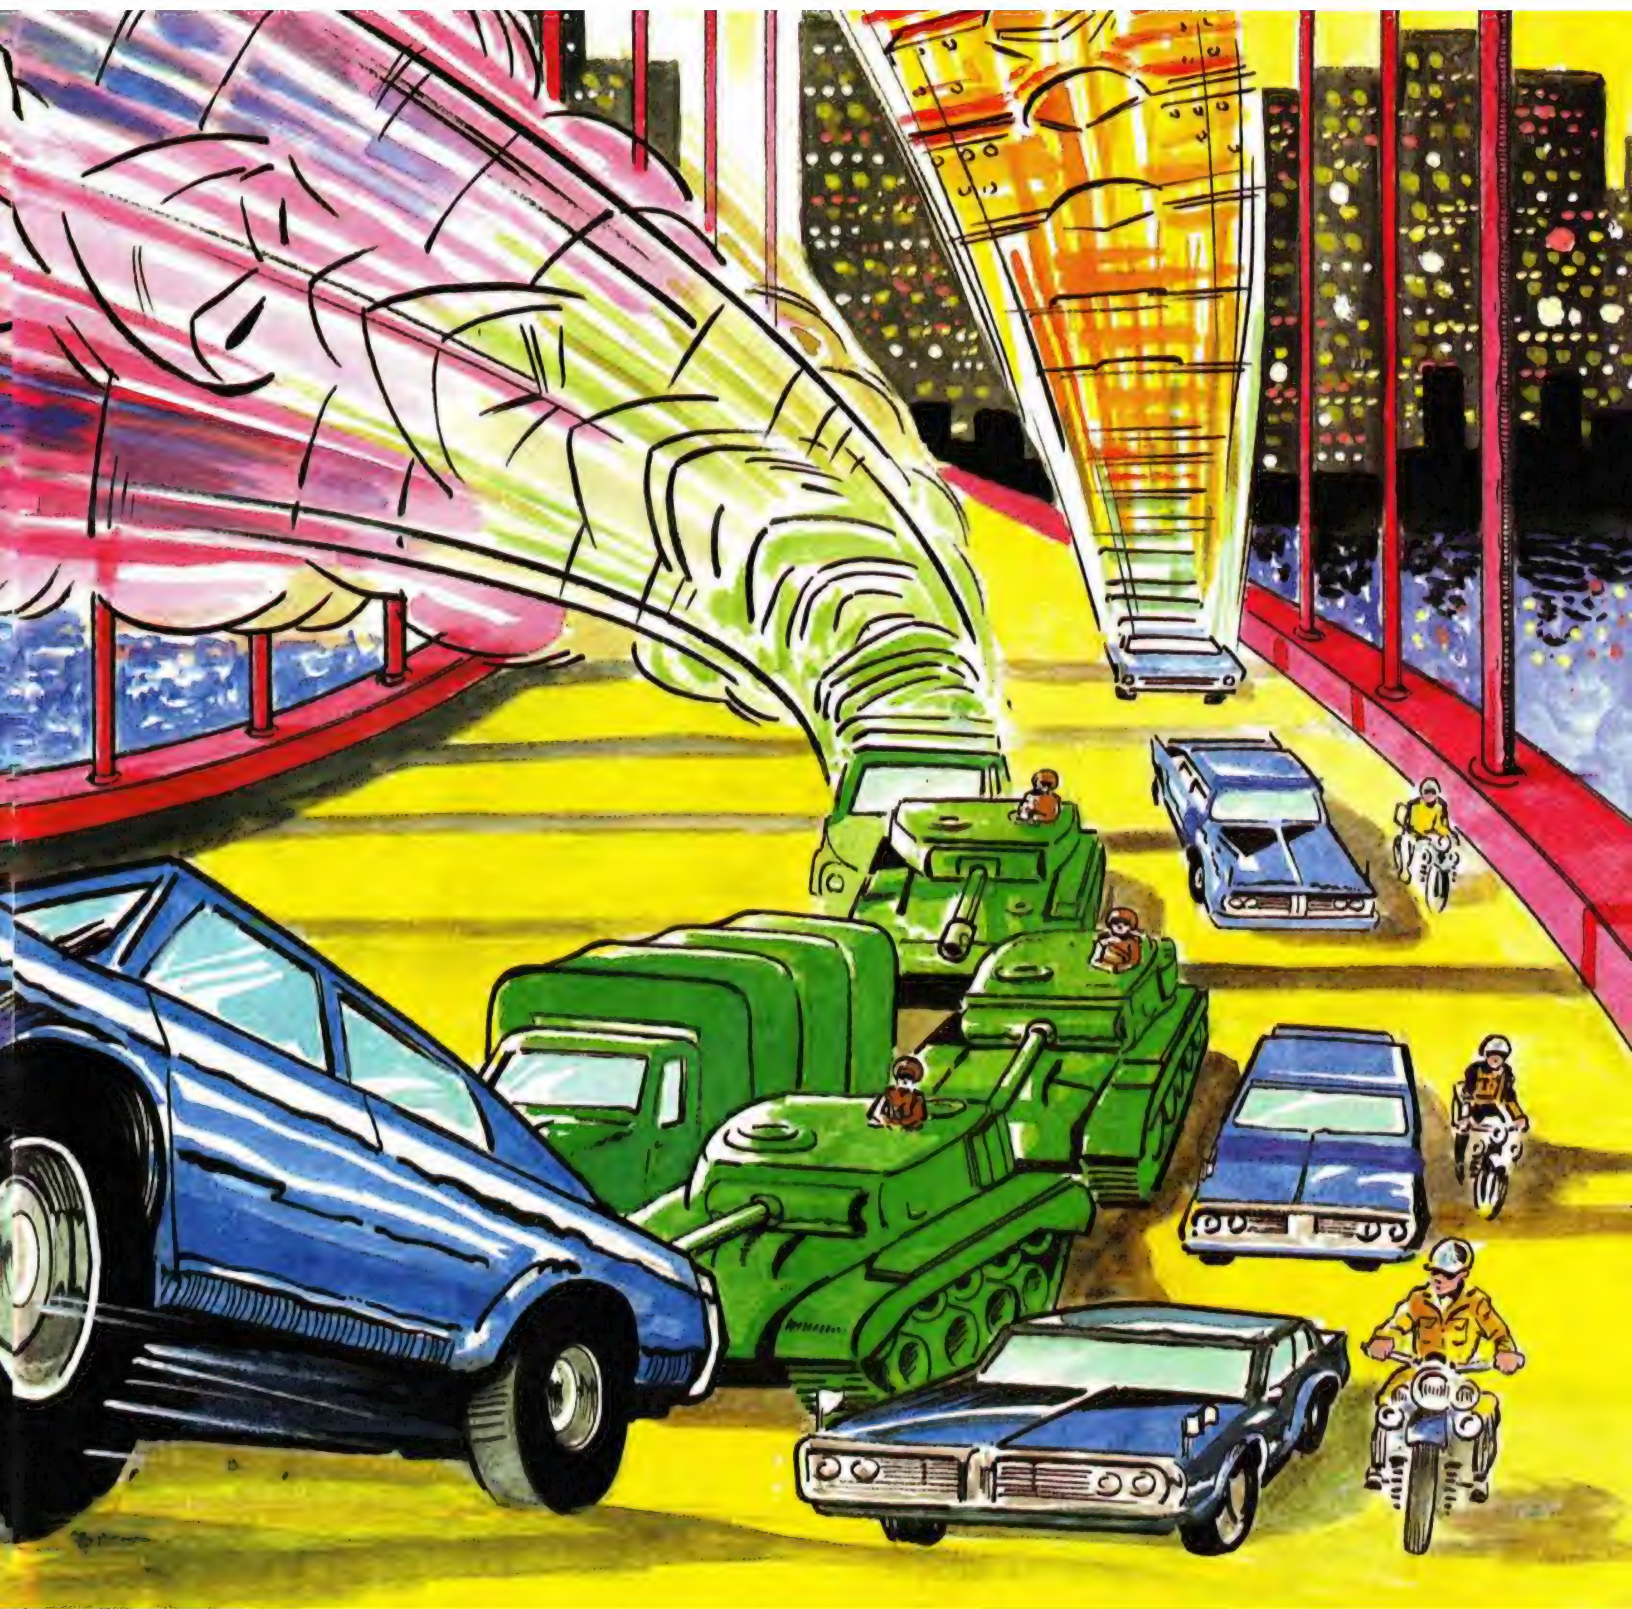

The attack robots then moved to the Golden Gate Bridge where they met the convoy transporting the delegates who were to attend the meeting. They did their utmost to destroy the convoy.

Meanwhile, Beckmall and Root, Marshal Small's two deadliest robots, transformed themselves into escort and delegate vehicles and headed for the Golden Gate Bridge. There they inconspicuously joined the convoy unbeknownst to the other delegates and security forces.

No one, except for the evil attack robots, realized that Beckmall and Root were in the convoy. Also hidden in the convoy, disguised as one of the limousines, was a robot changer! It had been ordered to the bridge by Victor, leader of the Robot Changer fleet—the protectors of the galaxy—in anticipation of Small's attempt to infiltrate and destroy the meeting.

At the secret meeting place, the other signers were anxiously awaiting the arrival of the delegates. They were well protected by Victor and his wingman, Dragoner. By now, the Robot Changers were concerned that the convoy had not yet arrived.

Victor's ultra-sensors were picking up the convoy's distress signals. He sent his troops, the Fedics, off to fight the evil Zzerial troops, led by Root and Beckmall who had changed back into their grotesque robot forms.

The delegates in the convoy could not believe the awesome power of the giant robots as they clashed in deadly combat. A terrifying battle began on the Golden Gate Bridge.

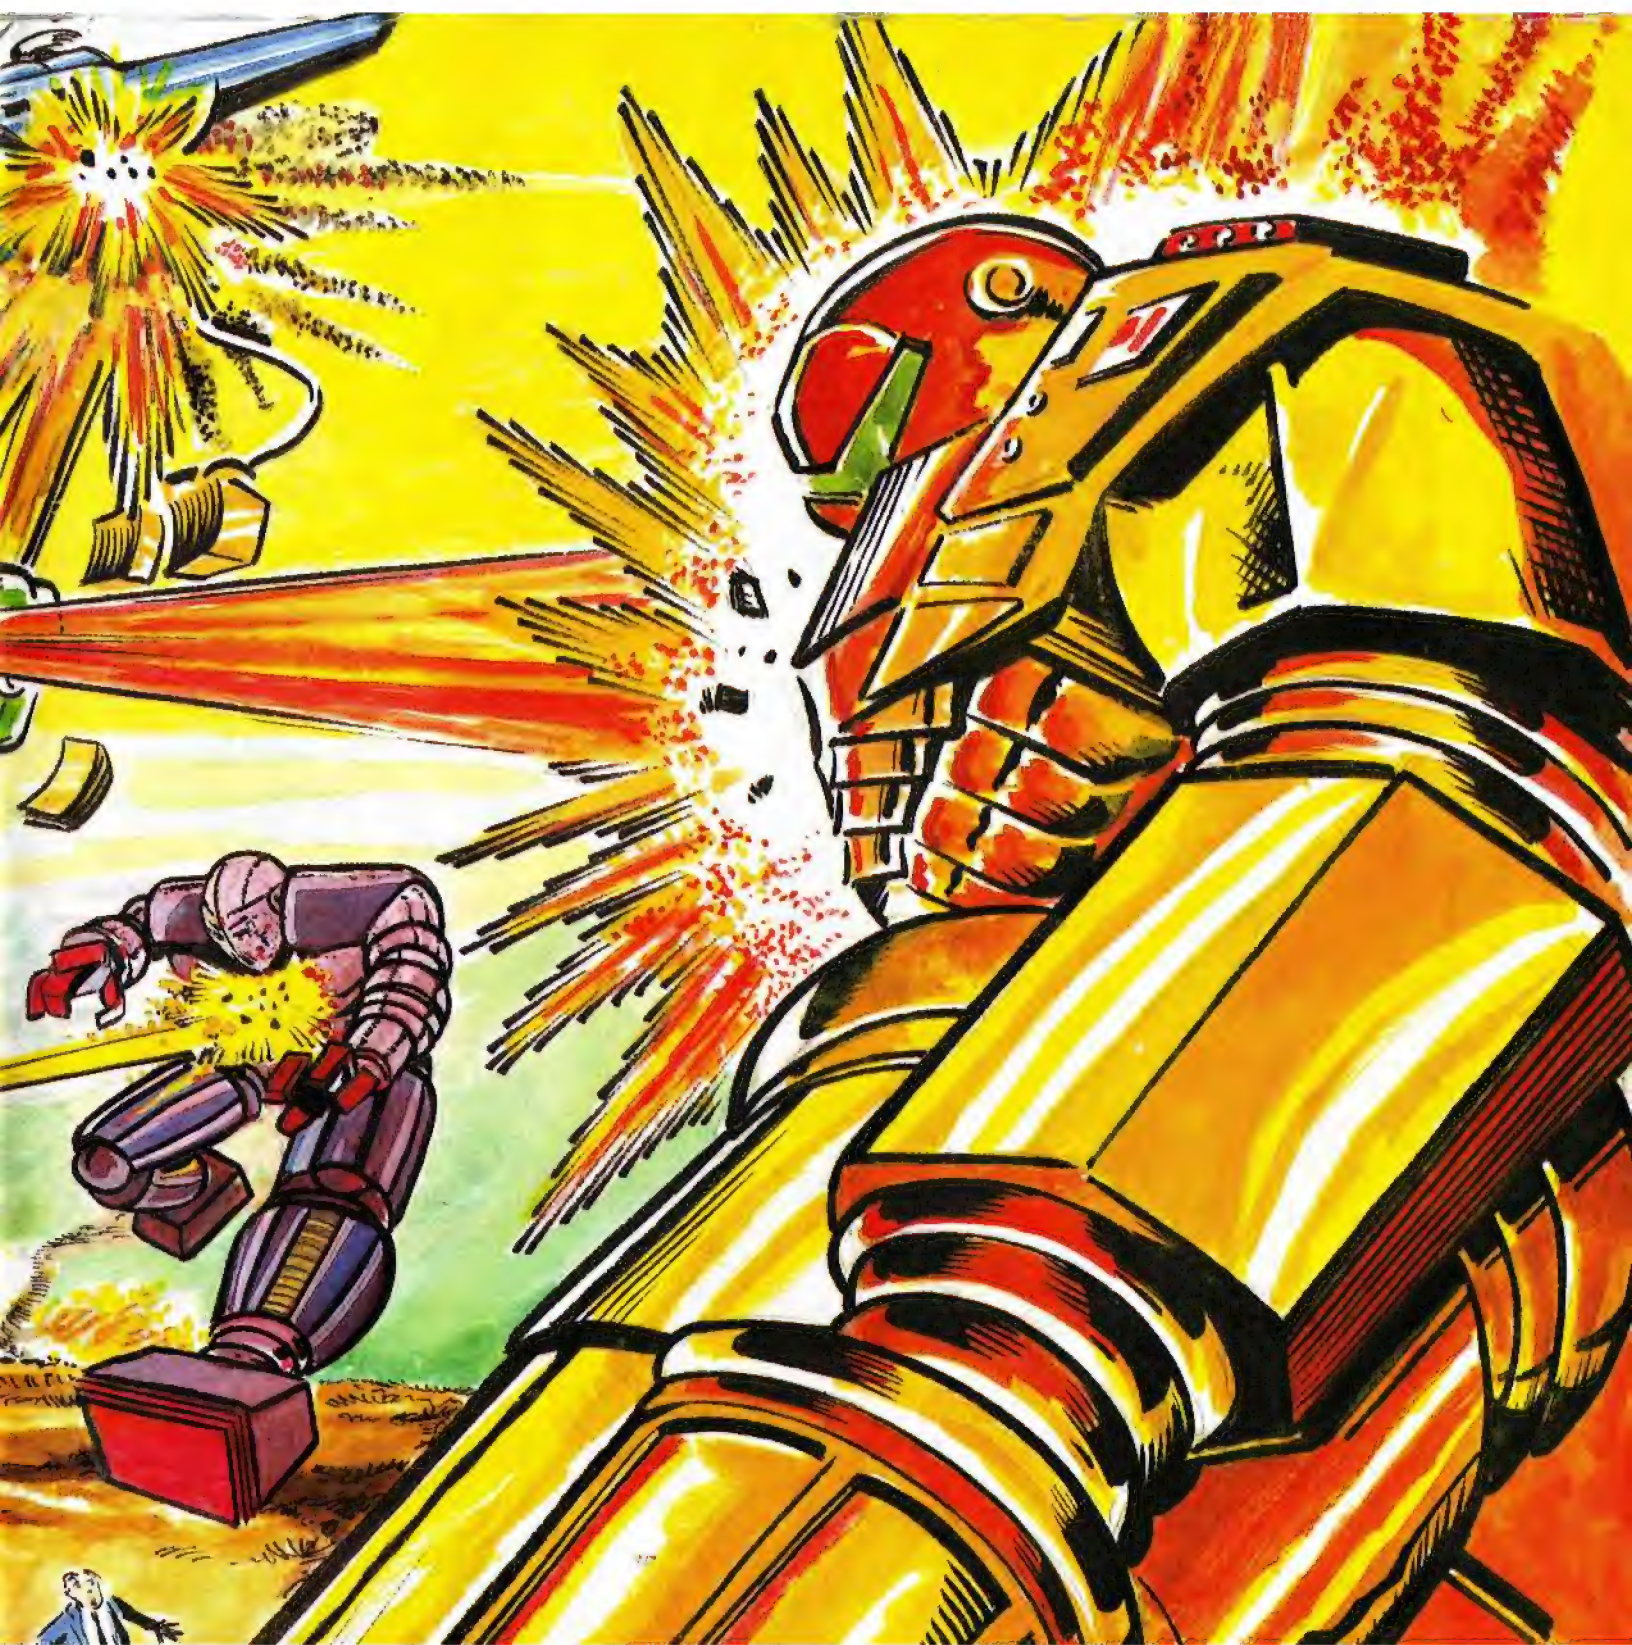

Realizing that Victor was thwarting his plan, the evil Marshal Small called upon one of his trusted Zzerial warriors. He ordered him to change into a helicopter to capture and destroy the delegate from Earth before he reached the meeting.

The Zzerial, as a helicopter, was on his way. Root and Beckmall were already waiting to carry out Marshal Small's plan. Now it was time for the Robot Changer limousine to transform itself back into its Robot Changer form. Slowly it changed into TWIN! With amazing force, Twin destroyed half a dozen robots of the attacking force. The fire-power he brought to bear was incredible. He chose his moment well. When Marshal Small's robots had become over-confident, Twin defeated his opponents saving the Earth delegate and his entourage which continued on its journey to sign the pact declaring war on Marshal Small.

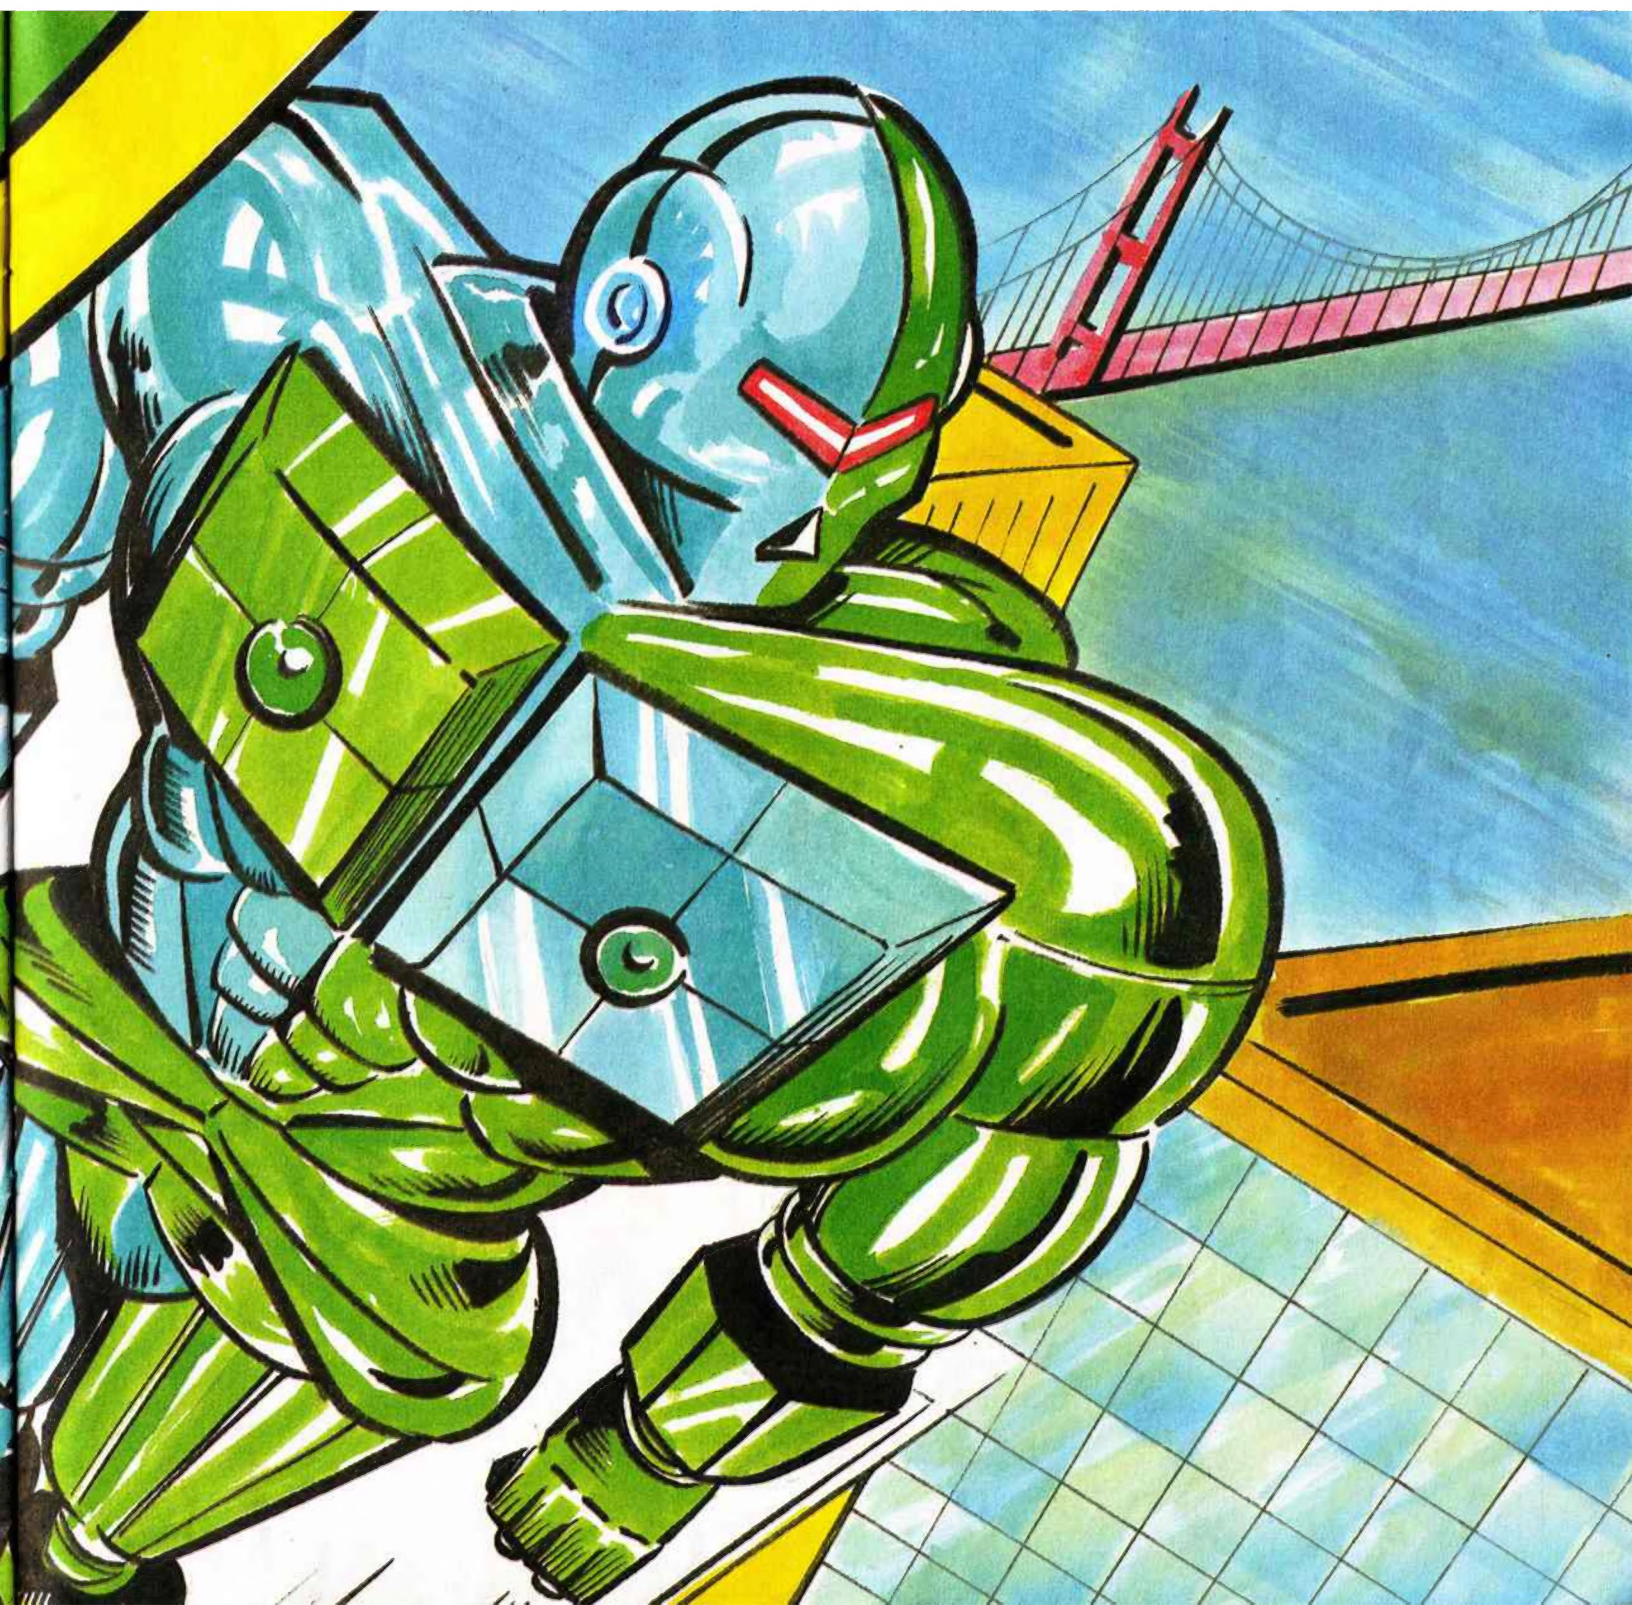

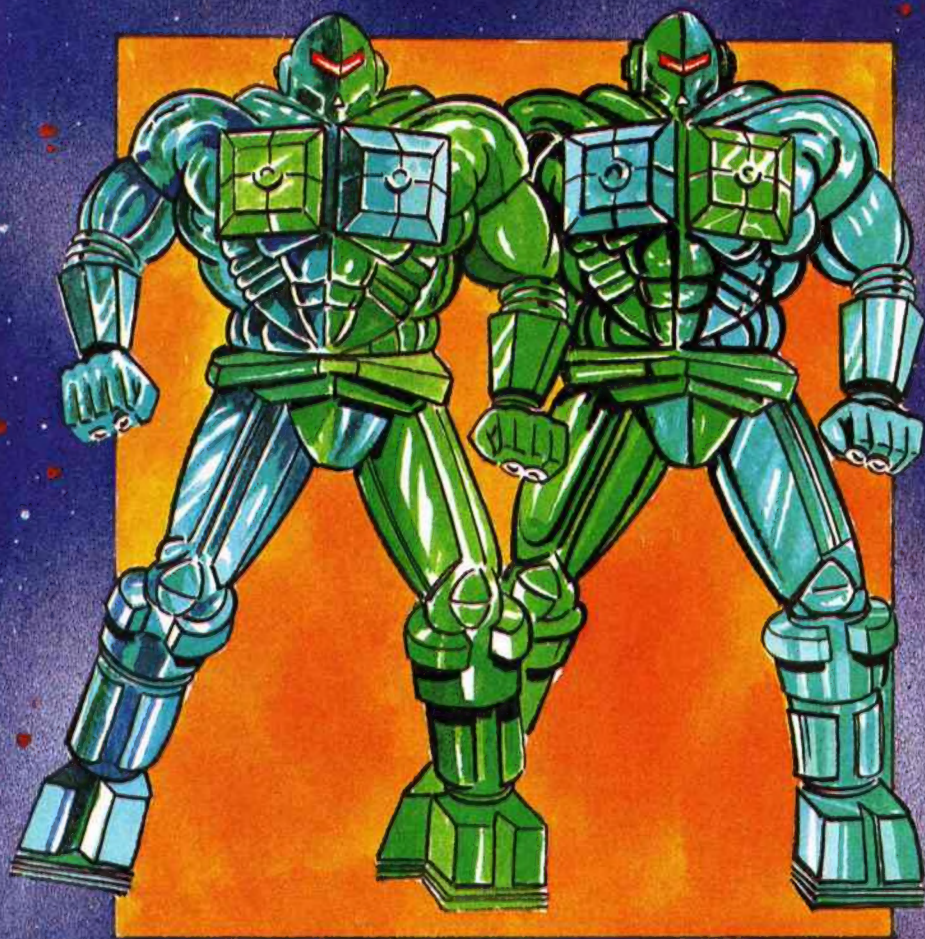

As the convoy got under way, Root saw a chance for escape. He slipped quietly into the Bay to change into a boat. Luckily, Twin had been left as the rear guard and spotted the robot. With a single blow from his mighty arm, Twin sent the Zzerial to the bottom of the ocean.

At last, under the protection of Twin and the Robot Changer fleet, the convoy reached the meeting. The meeting that Marshal Small wanted so desperately to prevent, was finally held. Earth officially became an ally of the other planets in the galaxy. Now they were ready to take drastic measures to rid the galaxy of Marshal Small and his evil Zzerial warriors.

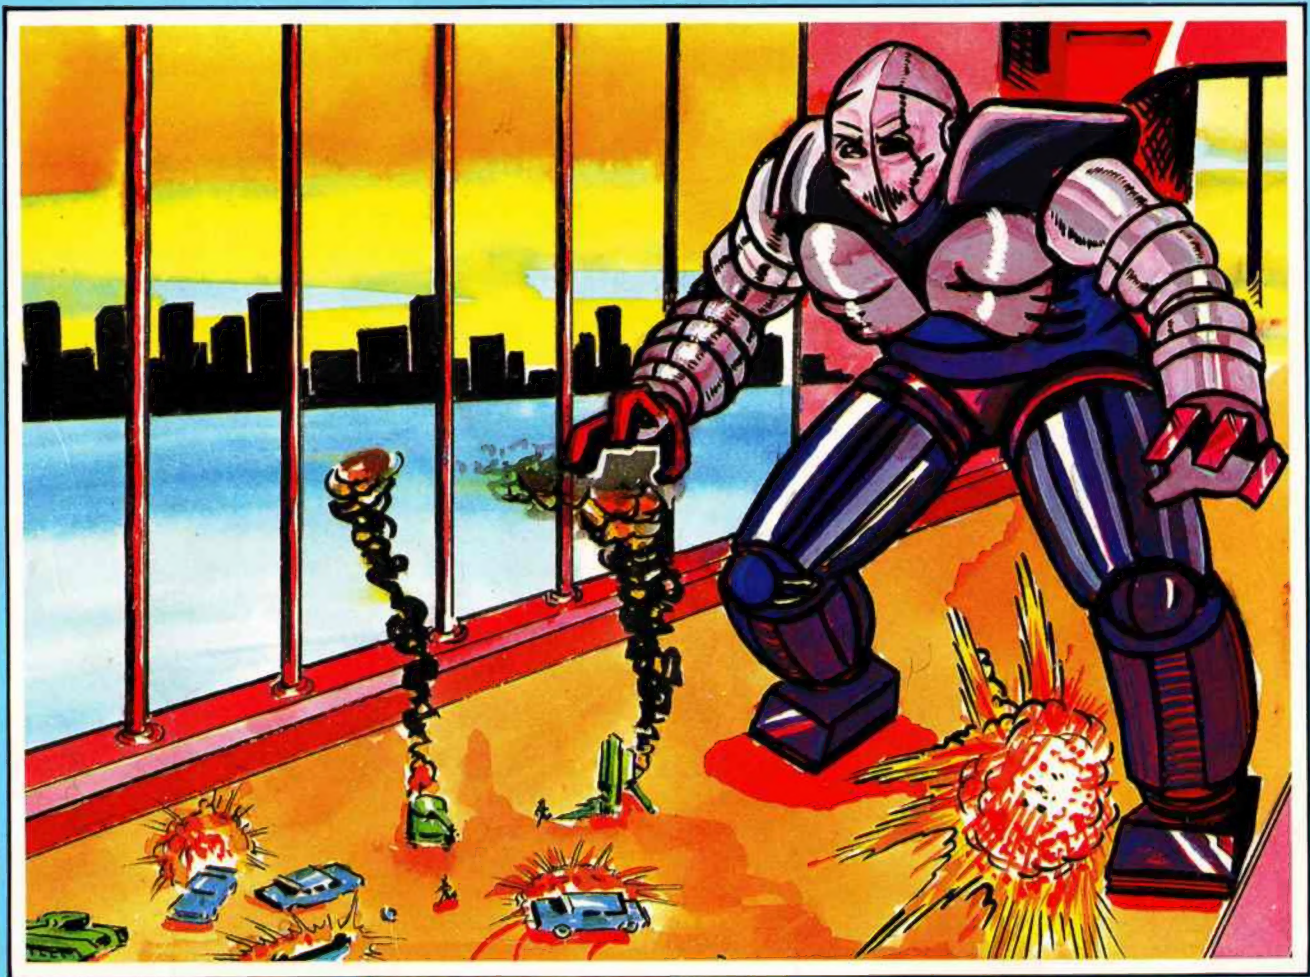

Only when the documents were signed did Twin feel satisfied enough to leave the planet Earth. He zoomed to rejoin his Robot Changer squadron at its home base on the planet Qualken.

Meet the Robot Changers™—the mighty warriors from outer space that change into vehicles as they move from planet to planet. The Robot Changer fleet are the protectors of the galaxy, in constant battle with their enemy Marshal Small and his Zzerial warriors who are determined to have the galaxy under their evil power.
